Student draws date with Drifter

Lindsey Sala is this year's winner in the Derby poster contest

Lindsey Sala will be getting a behind-the-scenes look at the Minden Sled Dog Derby as she spends a day with Drifter, the official derby mascot.

Lindsey is a grade seven student in Tom Dawson's class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. She is also the winner of this year's derby poster contest.

In addition to a cash prize, Lindsey gets to spend a day of the January 23 and 24 derby with Drifter. She will also be given the use of a sled and dog to enter the Kid and Mutt race on the Sunday of the derby.

The poster contest runs each year in conjunction with the sled dog derby. Lindsey was to have spent this past weekend with Drifter, but her date was postponed when a lack of snow pushed the race back two weeks.

Lindsey's entry was judged against 357 others, said Paul Gauntley, who organized the contest. He said the judges felt her poster best captured the spirit and the colour of the event.

Lindsey's teacher was not surprised by the judges' choice. Mr. Dawson said Lindsey has a flair for art. Several of her recent works adorn the classroom. Gauntley said Lindsey's poster had something special that captured the judges' eyes. He noted that the contest had dozens of outstanding entries, all of which are displayed in storefronts throughout Minden.

In addition to the grand prize, secondary prizes were awarded to the top three posters entered from each grade

Minden dog derby delayed

Flurries.

That's all the weatherman could offer Wednesday and it was far short of the dumping needed to ensure the ninth running of the Minden Sled Dog Derby would go ahead as scheduled.

After a brief look at the trail Wednesday afternoon, organizers made the inevitable decision to postpone the race.

The flip side of the coin, though, is that Minden won't have to wait a full month until the snow date. After the decision was made to postpone, organizers sat down with a calendar and concluded the event could be staged at the end of January rather than mid-February.

The new date for the race is January 23 and 24 which is far superior to the original mid-February snow date.

Trail boss Steve Loughheed said the organizers still have the energy to carry them through another two weeks. If, however, it was postponed for a month, their enthusiasm would have worn thin, he said.

"We can get geared back up in two weeks easier than four or five," said Loughheed. "We still have the enthusiasm."

The new snow date is also better than the original since it does not directly compete with any major races. The February date, on the other hand, would have put Minden's derby in the same time slot as two important races.

The decision to postpone should have come as no surprise. Although there was plenty of snow on the ground up until the weekend, the temperature dropped throughout the day Saturday and rain began to fall late in the evening. The rain Talking trash: Can the county afford to revive waste management plan? Can it afford not to?

Three hours of round-about discussions all distilled down to one plain fact: If Haliburton wants to get serious about waste management it's going to cost a lot of money.

How much? That depends.

How long will it take? That also depends.

What is known is that the county will have to hire a full-time co-ordinator if it plans to revive its waste management masterplan. In addition, the county would have to enlist a consultant to handle a large portion of this task.

Traditionally, the Ministry of the Environment has paid for half the costs associated with such studies, but there is no guarantee that will continue. The only promise the ministry is making right now is that it will pay "up to" 50 per cent of the costs. Considering the cutbacks on all fronts from the provincial government, "up to" anything provides little comfort.

The county's waste management steering committee met last Thursday in a crowded room on the ground floor of the registry office.

With three representatives from the Ministry of the Environment on hand, they talked about waste cardboard, refunds on liquor bottles, licensing of recycling handlers, chipping brush and dead car batteries.

What they really needed to know, though, was whether the county can afford to put the waste management masterplan back on the rails.

The masterplan was shelved last year for one simple reason: cutbacks had to be made in order to present a budget that would satisfy tax-wary residents. No one openly questioned the need to complete the masterplan, only the feasibility of pressing ahead in the midst of a recession.

With a new budget just around the corner, the steering committee is again wrestling with the same questions. Can the county afford to put it back in motion? Can it afford not to?

The issue is a double-edged sword. Moving ahead on the masterplan can bring huge savings in the future. However, delaying the process gives county ratepayers a break at a time when they can ill-afford to pay more taxes.

Uncertainty about continued ministry funding and the potential length of this study add a new dimension to the quandary.

Right now in Ontario there are 47 masterplans in the works. Sandra Kim from the Ministry's waste reduction office said the ministry's current funding scheme has the province picking up half the bill. While she indicated this is unlikely to change, Kim conceded that cutbacks are possible.

County could take over township's dumps

"It's always been 50 per cent, but who knows what will happen?" she said.

Kim also conceded that the ministry is capping the funding it will provide for some of the costs. She said there is now a $27,000 cap on the salaries for coordinators and a $10,000 cap on legal costs. There may eventually be a cap put on the cost of the project as a whole, she added.

Leaping back into the program would be less risky if there were some way of knowing when it might come to a conclusion. As it stands, though, there's no way of knowing when it might end. In the mean time, the county would be paying at least half of the wages, consulting, legal and administrative fees associated with the project.

Committee Chairman Ross Rabjohn likened the project to creating a new department within the county at an annual cost of $50,000. "What happens if the MOE funding disappears and costs shoot up to $100,000?" he asked. It would make county council's decision easier, he said, if the end were in sight two or three years down the road.

Waste management throughout the county is currently a municipal responsibility. Each of the 10 municipalities controls its own landfill sites. They deal independently with the associated staffing, maintenance, administration of the sites.

In total there are 33 landfills in the county with varying life spans and capacities. Some municipalities have the luxury of knowing their landfill sites have more than enough capacity to serve them beyond the turn of the century. Others are pressed for time before the ministry orders them shut down.

Some municipalities offer recycling programs, while others find this service too expensive to tackle on their own.

The benefits of a pooling of resources are clear. However, this is extremely difficult, if not impossible, without spending vast amounts of money.

It would also demand extraordinary co-operation among municipalities. Since the benefits are greatest to those municipalities already strapped for time, county-wide waste management would be a tough sell to get the others to buy into their problems.

If the county wishes to move toward a county-wide system it has two options. It can either go ahead with the masterplan or it can subject the landfills to the gamble and expense of environmental assessments.

The steering committee learned Wednesday that the ministry will not allow the county to assume ownership of the landfill sites without first undergoing environmental assessments on each.

Virtually all of the county's landfills were established in the days before extensive environmental testing was the norm. Environmental assessment would put each of the landfills under the microscope, revealing every scratch and dent. In addition to the expense, this proposition brings with it the risk that some might be forced to shut down.

The second option available to the county is to proceed with the masterplan. The committee was told that individual assessments would not be necessary if the masterplan is carried through to its conclusion.

The ministry has set out a five-step program for the creation of waste management masterplans. Haliburton County has already completed the first step of assessing problems.

The second step in the process is to develop a plan to divert waste from landfills through re-use, recycling and reduction. Step three is to implement that program.

The fourth and fifth steps in the process deal with the waste that cannot be diverted. Step four is to develop a waste management system plan and step five is to implement that plan.

The first three steps in the process are where the county stands to gain the most ground. Through recycling and composting, the level of waste going into landfills can be dramatically reduced.

Although the recommendations that will ultimately come from these steps are predictable, Kim strongly recommended hiring a consultant to guide the way.

The county does, however, have the option of bypassing consultants for this part of the study. However, in order to appease the ministry, the county would then be required to hire a "project manager", who would demand a higher salary than that of a coordinator.

Although the option of going ahead without consultants is possible, Kim said it has never been tried. Of all the municipalities involved in the masterplan process, none are going without consultants.

The final two steps in the process are where the real money will be spent. Step four takes a hard look at the landfill space available and, if necessary, targets locations for new sites. Hydrogeologic studies, surveys, test wells, public consultation and environmental assessments all carry the potential of driving costs up.

If everything goes well, the committee was told, the final steps could be accomplished within a few years. However, considering the political, economic and environmental concerns that must be addressed, a quick trip through these steps is doubtful.

In the next few months the committee will have to wrestle with the information provided at Wednesday's meeting and come up with a recommendation for county council's consideration. The county will then have to make the ultimate decision of whether it should proceed with the study.

Dashing through the snow....the missing ingredient this past weekend.

continued to fall right through until Tuesday morning, washing away most of the ample snow base.

The temperature dropped below freezing Tuesday, turning the slushy course into a trail of ice. And although the skies looked promising, they failed to provide any substantial snowfall. Instead, the county received only enough snow to taunt organizers into delaying their decision as long as possible.

Although 48 hours of notice is all that is required by the International Sled Dog Racing Association (ISDRA), organizers saw no reason to delay their decision beyond noon Wednesday.

"The trail was pure ice with a dusting of snow on top," said Loughheed. "I couldn't even define a trail out there."

With competitors coming from all parts of North America, the decision had to be made as soon as possible.

Loughheed said he was getting calls from mushers Tuesday night who wanted to know if the race was on. If so, they wanted to get on the road by Wednesday.

On the other hand, if the Minden race was to be postponed, mushers need advance notice in order to make alternate plans to attend races elsewhere.

Although Wednesday's weather forecast was calling for more snow by the weekend, organizers didn't feel it was worth the risk of pushing ahead. The derby has earned an outstanding reputation among mushers, which is far too valuable to wager on the weather.

The concept of a snow date was implemented a few years ago when the sixth annual running had to be cancelled because of a lack of snow. The snow date was used for the first time in the event's history last January.

The shortage of snow is not unique to Minden. Organizers of the Norland Winter Carnival faced the same agonizing decision about the sled dog races they had planned for this past weekend. The Ontario Area Siberian Husky Club of Canada had races planned for January 9 and 10 in conjunction with the winter carnival and North Kawartha Frost Fest. However, they also had to be postponed.

Minimal raises given teachers

Victoria County teachers get just $500 in contract's first year

Economic restraint is the image projected from the new contracts signed by Victoria County's teachers.

Lengthy negotiations concluded last week when teachers on the elementary and secondary levels voted in favour of contracts that offer minimal wage increases.

Elementary teachers approved their new two-year contract by a narrow vote. The contract, which comes into effect in February, gives them across-the-board raises of $500 in the first year and $100 in the second year.

Secondary teachers managed to bargain the school board down to a one-year contract for an extra $500.

Gord Evans, the board's personnel manager, said there were no trade-offs in the contract that encouraged the teachers to accept the minimal wage increase.

Evans said the teachers deserve praise for approving these contracts. "It's a responsible and positive response to the economy," he said, "and I'm damned proud of them."

Faced with funding cutbacks from the ministry and a tax base incapable of absorbing new taxes, the board had initially proposed three-year contracts with no wage increases. Evans said taxpayers in Victoria County were saying they can't afford the increased taxes that would result from significant increases in teachers' salaries.

Aside from wages, Evans said there are a few minor revisions to other sections of the contracts. However, these revisions are not costly ones for the board to provide. Revisions include improvements to the elementary teachers' dental plan, a slight increase to the professional development fund and an increase in maternity leave payments.

A new clause in the elementary-level contract will provide more security to teachers who wish to temporarily work on a part-time basis. Full-time teacher will now be able to move to part-time for up to two years and be guaranteed the option of returning to full-time.

One other revision in the contract involves the language for the continuing education program. The change will allow the board to offer summer school courses, an option the board plans to exercise next summer.

Martialling support for the arts

by Jerry Grozelle

The various forms of the martial arts are not for everyone and David Loughead will be the first to admit it.

Loughead is an instructor with the Kinmount Martial Arts Club. He teaches tae kwon do, a form of karate, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Kinmount Community Centre. He is also learning four other forms of karate from Steve Raszewski of Milton. Raszewski is a fourth degree black belt in one form of the art (hapkido) and a third degree in three more.

"There's a lot of work involved," Loughead says. "If it was easy, everybody would do it."

Of all the people who show enough interest to attend classes, only about 30 to 40 per cent are willing to make the commitment to continue past the first few classes.

Karate is more than just a sport. "It's a way of life," Loughead says. "It's really good for you."

For those who are willing to make the commitment, there are many rewards. Being proficient in any form of martial art is a tremendous confidence builder and it is an excellent way of relieving the stress and frustrations of everyday life. In addition, participants can expect to lose weight, tone muscles, gain flexibility, increase hand-eye co-ordination and improve their balance, among other things.

Loughead stresses that there is no such word as can't when it comes to learning the art. He says that he instructs his students how they can master the moves and encourages them to try.

The 43-year-old grandfather had a 15-year hiatus from the discipline, starting again two years ago after moving to the Kinmount area from Mississauga. He participated in his last tournament in 1975.

Loughead has reached the brown belt level, one notch below the black. Most of his training took place in Scarborough.

His four-year-old son David Jr. is one of his students. Classes range from the very young to adult. The season runs from September to about May or June. The local club takes a break through the summer months because students are often away on family vacations during that time and it is too hot in the community centre for that type of activity.

The Kinmount Legion and Lions Club are sponsors of the Martial Arts Club. They purchased the equipment (mats, punching bags, etc.) and the club fees pay the rent on the hall. Since it is a non-profit club, fees can be kept to a minimum. Adults pay $40 per year and children pay an annual fee of $20. If two or more children from the same family join, the second and subsequent membership fees are $10 per child.

The only other expense is for the uniform, which Loughhead encourages his students not to buy until they are sure they are going to continue.

By the number of orange belts evident at the classes, it is obvious that many of Loughhead's students are back for their second year.

There are five levels before the black belt designation. Beginners start off with a white belt, followed by orange, green, blue and brown as their proficiency increases. It usually takes a minimum of five years to reach black belt status and from there, several degrees of black can be achieved. The last few degrees can only be reached by going to the country of origin of the specific discipline and learning from a master of the art.

Another form of karate (Okinawa style) is taught by Al Carrier.

Carrier's classes are conducted at the Kinmount Community Centre on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays.

Loughhead says that no one art is better than another. He chose tae kwon do because it focuses on using the feet and legs, which have more power than the arms, to avoid an attacker. He adds that the various forms of karate compliment one another, which is why he is working on other styles besides tae kwon do.

Steve Raszewski will be in Kinmount this month to conduct a self defense class for women, which will teach the participants how to get away from an attacker. He will also instill some "city smarts", which will help the women identify and avoid possible dangers.

The one-day, five-hour class is already at capacity but if enough interest is shown, another class may be scheduled at a later date.

Norland Frost Fest postponed

The North Victoria Frost Fest/Norland Winter Carnival has been postponed due to the unseasonably warm weather.

The event which was to take place last weekend has been pushed back until the weekend of January 22, 23, 24.

The reason for the delay was the mild and rainy weather that hit the area earlier last week.

The cancellation followed the announcement that the Minden Sled Dog Derby had also been cancelled due to unsafe ice conditions. The derby was rescheduled until January 23, 24 - the same date the organizers of the Frost Fest picked.

The Frost Fest includes a sled dog derby event.

Innovative trash

The province keeps telling us that innovation is the working word when coping with problems in a depressed economy.

If so, then why do they provide us with models to follow and discourage us from deviating from their established pattern.

For the better part of three hours last Wednesday an image was projected onto a wall of a meeting room in the registry office. The simple graph charted the path the county must take if it is to proceed with its waste management masterplan. For three relentless hours the overhead projected its black-and-white image on the wall and into the minds of the members of the waste management committee.

The chart made it look so easy. Five simple steps. This... Is... How... It's... Done.

In reality, though, the steps are anything but simple. They're so complicated, in fact, that the county would have to hire technical staff in addition to expert consultants if it wishes to follow the ministry's path.

Complicated? Yes.

Expensive? Yes.

Productive? Not likely.

Let's face it: when has a consulting firm ever produced a report that stated more than the obvious? They'll sweep into the county for a week, kick around a few rusty cans at the dumps, drill some test holes, then rush back to their headquarters and write up a lengthy report, laced with facts and figures which prove whatever it is they were asked to prove. For the most part, the report will be a photocopy of a study done for some other hapless municipality.

The concept of a waste management masterplan is excellent. The concept of paying huge dollars to appease a provincial ministry which is incapable of understanding its own advice is ludicrous.

When it comes to important issues in this county, everything takes a back seat to waste management. Haliburton, like so many other municipalities, is rushing head-long into a crisis if something isn't soon done to resolve the inadequacies in the system. Our health, our livelihood, our future depends on it.

We can't afford to ignore the problems. Neither can we afford to do it according to the ministry's blueprint.

The only solution, then, is innovation. The county is fully capable of developing a workable plan to manage and reduce our waste while foregoing the whitewash of a high-priced consulting firm, if only the ministry would allow it to happen. Simple, straight-forward solutions tailored specifically to this county are what's needed.

Our provincial politicians are correct in stating that innovation is the way to go. However, they should spend less time selling this message to municipalities and more time convincing their own bureaucrats.

Remembering friends lost

Editor:

In the past year-and-a-half we have lost four great men from the Carnarvon area. They have passed on to a more peaceful life beyond this one, but they will never be forgotten.

At various times they have been to my home and place of business or I to theirs. They will always have a special place in my heart and memory.

Mr. George Bunn passed away just shy of his 85th birthday. He was the proprietor of Carnarvon Machine Shop in which he worked six days a week. As long as you didn't rush George he could fix or manufacture just about anything mechanical. Whenever I entered his shop I was welcomed with a handshake, smile and an "Oh it's so good to see you again." And if it was coffee-break time I was invited to join him and his lovely wife on their deck overlooking 12 Mile Lake for coffee, cookies and conversation.

His work was unsurpassed. When he did something for you it worked. He never bragged or boasted, he just quietly did his job. He never once had an unkind word about anyone. With his knowledge and experience he could have charged $80 per hour, but he was satisfied with $10 and a job well done.

He will always be missed and remembered as I pass by his shop on my way up Hwy. 35.

Mr. John Harrison, who owned Harrison Trucking, was like Mr. Bunn in that he never had an unkind word for anyone in all the times he was in my shop or I at his home or work. Again he was a very hard worker; one evening we worked till after midnight in the pouring rain on one of his trucks to get it going for his driver in the morning and he never complained or gave up.

When he was dying from cancer I found out from his brother-in-law John who came into my shop to pay his bill and talk. But John never complained and to my knowledge never gave up. Again, this gentleman will be missed.

Mr. Newton Thompson would come into my shop two or three times per week to talk for an

No assurances given by hospital director

Editor,

The doctors received the following response from Frank Lussing, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital, to their request at the last doctor's meeting for assurance that the Minden Hospital will maintain all its services in Minden.

I would like to point out the following concerns with reference to this response:

1) The Six Month Report of the Haliburton County Planning and Development Committee states, "the committee has the opportunity to support a particular acute care scenario, however the final decision in terms of acute care rests with the board of St. Joseph's Hospital."

This statement contradicts Lussing's inference in the second paragraph of his response to the doctors that he is unable to make a commitment at this time to maintain all current services, until he receives the recommendations of the committee.

2) He mentions a commitment by himself and the board to the maintenance of acute care services in Minden. However, according to the minutes of a previous meeting with Lussing and Doug Campbell, he defined acute care as the care received in an emergency department, whereas the medical profession defines acute care as the care received in a hospital inpatient bed following the emergency care. So according to Lussing's definitions, his statement makes no commitment to our inpatient beds and therefore to our hospital. An emergency department alone is not a hospital by the medical profession's and patients' understanding.

It would appear that either Lussing or the committee is passing the buck concerning future responsibility should we lose our inpatient services.

Sonya Holliday-Rhodes
Citizens for the hospital

The following letter from Frank Lussing is in response to a request made by Minden's doctors:

This letter is further to our meeting of December 17, 1992, and your request, which was handed to me at this meeting, for "... written affirmation that in any long-term health care plan proposed for Minden, Minden Hospital's seven adult inpatient beds, its two paediatric beds and its emergency department will all be retained in Minden in their current functional capacities."

As I indicated to you at the meeting, I cannot presume to know what option for future hospital and health care services in Minden will ultimately be recommended by the Haliburton Planning and Development Committee as a result of the planning activities currently underway. In view of this, and until such time as specific recommendation is made, it would be totally inappropriate for me to commit to a specific configuration and size of acute in- and out-patient hospital facilities for Minden.

This should not be construed as a lack of commitment to the maintenance of acute care services in Minden. This commitment is clear and has been enunciated by the board and I on many previous occasions.

I join you in looking forward to participating in the current planning process in a way which will ensure that those hospital services in Minden which are required and affordable, are maintained and enhanced.

hour or so and then he would go on to Mr. John Rolands' place for a visit. With hardly any education he built a working greenhouse and a sawmill. He pulled the motor out of a skidder and replaced it with a Nissan diesel engine.

A very religious man who read the Bible everyday, he told me that he talked to angels quite often.

When he was lying in the Civic Hospital dying from a brain tumour he told me that he didn't have much longer on this earth and I told him that he would be with the angels he talked to so often.

Newton was always there when I needed someone to make a delivery or whatever. He never had an unkind word about anyone and even with all the pain he went through when dying he never complained.

If he had had the proper education he could have been an engineer. He will be sadly missed by everyone who knew him.

Last, but not least, Mr. Lorne Bull passed away on December 31. Lorne would come into my shop two, three or four times a week to visit and to see if I needed him to help with a delivery or two. The only way he would ever take any money from me for all his help was if I told him he would hurt my feelings if he didn't take it. Even then it was very rare for him to take the money.

This man had a heart as big as he was tall. He was always doing something for someone whether it was taking his mother shopping in town or doing something for his children or anyone else in this area we could all depend on Lorne.

He had a key for my house and business and when I would go away for a few days to visit my mother I knew I could depend on Lorne to feed my dogs and look after the place for me.

Like the others he never complained, never had an unkind word about anyone and he was always trying to help people. I will surely miss my friend.

Woman awakes after 30 years in a coma

"Where were you in ..."

That's the preamble to one of the more popular party games these days. It's kind of a variation on Trivial Pursuit - without the board. Somebody names a year and everybody takes turns recounting where they were and what they were doing and with whom at that particular point on the calendar. It's an amusing way to break the ice and get to know your fellow party-goers better.

For instance, I could say, "Where were you in '63?" and we could have a fine old time comparing notes. Everybody (well, every middle-aged body, anyway) remembers where they were at some time in 1963 because that's the year somebody shot John F. Kennedy. And everyone who's old enough knows exactly where they were when JFK was murdered.

I know where I was.

And I know where Anne Shapiro was, too.

She was in her living room in Florida watching television.

Anne Shapiro was from Hamilton, Ontario. She and her husband had moved to Florida in the early 60s after Mister Shapiro retired. In the fall of 1963 she was watching I Love Lucy on television to keep her mind off the Kennedy assassination. Right about the time Ricky was screaming at Lucy and Lucy was wailing at the camera, Anne Shapiro felt a small 'ping' behind her eyes.

And that's when the lights went out. Anne Shapiro - just 49 years of age - had suffered a

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

massive and utterly debilitating stroke.

Anne Shapiro didn't die, but she could no longer speak, walk or even dress herself.

She stayed that way for the next 30 years. Last November the comatose Shapiro was rushed to a hospital with chest pains. She was sedated and tucked into a hospital bed. When she came to, Anne Shapiro made her first sound in three decades. It was a high-pitched scream. Her eyes were locked on to a television set. She was screaming because the picture was in colour - something she'd never seen. She thought the television wasn't working and might be about to explode.

Anne Shapiro appears to be on her way to a complete recovery - insofar as complete recovery is possible. The 49-year-old woman who had the stroke in 1963 is now nudging 80 and learning to cope with a barrage of Buck Rogersish phenomena never dreamt of in 1963 - everything from microwave ovens and Cabbage Patch dolls to space shuttles and cellular phones.

Rip Van Winkle slept for 20 years. Anne Shapiro stayed out half as long again.

When Anne Shapiro suffered her stroke Sonny Liston was the heavyweight champ, Christine Keeler was making things hot for British Parliamentarians, people were flocking to the movies to see new hits Tom Jones and Cleopatra, and a fresh-faced comedian by the name of Johnny Carson was nervously taking over the reins from Tonight Show host Jack Parr.

Martin Luther King and Governor George Wallace represented the opposite ends of the Evening News spectrum. A $100 a week represented a darn good wage and with a five-cent stamp you could mail a letter first class, anywhere in the country.

And it would actually get there.

How long ago was 1963? The Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup that year for crying out loud!

Just think of all the things that Anne Shapiro slept through.

Canada's Centennial...Paul Henderson's goal...all of Karen Kain's career.

Vietnam...Richard Nixon...the Morton Downey Jr. show.

Dan Quayle...a good half dozen of Liz Taylor's marriages...all of John Turner and Joe Clark...and most of Trudeau and Brian Mulroney.

AIDS...Jacques Parizeau...the constitutional referendum.

Maybe Anne Shapiro wasn't screaming about her 1992 television not working.

Maybe she sensed it was working only too well.

Helpful people get driver out of icy ditch

Editor:

On January 3, 1993 my daughters, three of my grandchildren and I were on our way to Toronto when we lost control of the car on Hwy. 503 between Uphill and Sebright due to the ice on the road. We then slid into a ditch.

We just wanted to thank everyone who showed concern and tried to help. The people in the white pick-up who called the police, the man in the silver truck with his wife, the kids who tried to pull us out, the men who tried to push us out and Dave Bergess who was driving past and rescued us.

With this society being the way it is, it is refreshing to see people still care. Again, thanks everybody.

Yours Truly,

June Hendry, Carole Alexander, Lorraine Borden and three kids

Whether the weather, whatever

All that hard thinking and praying for snow went for naught when the Minden Sled Dog Derby was cancelled last Wednesday afternoon.

"Think snow," said some Mindenites on Monday.

"Pray for snow," said others as the Wednesday deadline approached.

Those people who had never attended a Sled Dog Derby must have been left wondering, "Why in the name of large mule muffins should we pray for snow?"

They were also probably baffled by the cryptic conversations that passed between people in the know.

"Weather looks pretty bad, doesn't it," said one man looking up to a bright yellow sun.

"Sure does," agreed another who was wearing a double fur-lined parka as if that would make it snow.

Huh?

Usually the only people who pray for snow are snowmobilers and skiers, those folks who take delight in the sight of cold water.

I suspect these are the same people who are also heavy consumers of bubble bath during the summer months as they dream of clean trails and frothy slopes while getting prune hands in the tub.

And for what. So a bunch of men and women can stand behind a team of dogs and yell "Mush" at the top of their lungs in an effort to exhort their animals onwards and upwards in the timed trials.

Toronto mayor June Rollins has banished others for lesser crimes.

Like smokers.

It is now illegal to smoke in nearly every public building in Toronto. City Hall. Roy Thomson Hall. Even Maple Leaf Gardens.

Anyone caught smoking, except in restricted areas, will be subject to criminal prosecution and at the very least a bevy of dirty looks and an assortment of finger waving.

I also find it hard to believe that the next time Metallica plays the Gardens there will be no smoking. Even those who don't smoke usually end up buying a pack of cigs or bumming a few off their friends. Many don't even smoke cigarettes at all, if you get my meaning.

In the end it won't matter. People will continue to do what they want to do.

Like pray for snow.

In actual fact, the praying worked a little bit. There were about three inches of snow piled on my car on both Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. However, it was not enough and the derby was postponed.

Too bad. Everyone says the derby is a lot of fun. Not the race itself which the sledders and a few hardy spectators mainly enjoy, but the festival atmosphere that overcomes the town.

But praying for snow?

All one had to do was look in the new Old Farmer's Almanac and they would have discovered that for January 1-4 it was supposed to be mild and clear and for January 5-8 it was supposed to be mild and rainy. Definitely not derby weather.

However, this same book predicted that November would be dryer than usual and be just slightly cooler than normal.

This contrasts with local weather guru Phil Graham's measurements reported in The Times last month which showed we received three times as much rain as last year and it was more than just slightly cooler. The Almanac also failed to predict any of the major snow storms we have experienced.

I guess the old farmers who write the book can be wrong too, sometimes.

The good news is that the derby was merely postponed and will be run on January 23 and 24 instead.

The bad news is that the Almanac predicts that the week leading up to the derby will be mild and rainy.

Can lightning strike twice?

I may even buy a pack of cigarettes.

Good old luck plays a nasty tune

As most of you already know the annual sled dog derby has been postponed for two weeks due to poor snow conditions. Poor snow conditions are an unavoidable problem (unless somewhere in the derby budget there's room for $2-million worth of snow-making equipment).

No matter what the event planned there's always something that could go wrong. Even looking back at some of the great events in history it becomes apparent that luck plays a large part in the success of any project, discovery or victory.

For instance, imagine if the first organism to crawl out of the sea and begin the evolutionary chain that theoretically led to the development of man, had emerged on the coast of California and somehow wandered into the area now known as South Central Los Angeles.

The hapless beastie would probably have been mugged, beaten and/or abused by several gang members (it's a well known scientific fact that street gangs and therefore gang members have existed in this area since well before humans ever evolved) before it could even change its flippers into legs.

The wiggly little fellow would have undoubtedly decided that it liked it just fine back in the water, thank you very much, and you and I would be swimming around somewhere off the coast of Greenland foraging for plankton.

What if our distant ancestor who first discovered the secret of making fire had a mother who said "Don't play with fire or you'll end up looking like your Uncle Grog who wanted to see how volcanoes work" and sent him to bed without any supper. We'd be eating raw meat and looking over our shoulders in case there was an ice age sneaking up on us.

If early in his budding career as the conqueror of the known world Alexander the Great had decided that he was a "lover not a fighter" we could all say good-bye to stuff like togas and geometry that the Greeks invented and were then spread throughout Europe and northern Africa by Alex.

Upon reflection, I do not find the concept of a world without togas and complex mathematical theories that personally upsetting (for reference check out John Belushi in the toga party scene from "Animal House" or try to figure out the tangent of a 39 degree angle and I think you'll agree that we could do without either of these) but our society and way of living would still be a great deal different without them.

Finally, what if Orville and Wilbur Wright had noticed that the shape of one of their early gliders attracted a variety of eagles, hawks and condors during their respective mating seasons after cultivating a fondness for their feathery companions they, instead of being the first to achieve powered flight, had taken positions as bird trainers and assistant walrus groomers at Marineland.

Oliver's Twist

by Oliver Greer

Instead of taking two weeks off for that vacation to Australia you would have to schedule the extra month it would take to get there by boat because you wouldn't be flying. On a lighter note we could also say goodbye to inflight meals of the same consistency and taste as boot leather and stewardesses, who, for the most part are only slightly less cranky than Donald Trump losing at Monopoly (remind you of something Don?).

Almost anything could change the course of history so next time you give your kids trouble for making a mess with their chemistry set, just think, you could be shooting the career of the next Albert Einstein straight down the tubes.

One month grace period given for Outdoors Card

A one-month grace period has been declared by the Ministry of Natural Resources for Outdoors Card applicants who don't receive their cards by January 1.

All Ontario residents must now have an Outdoors Card in order to buy a hunting or fishing licence. Most will be in the form of stickers attached to the card. The stickers will replace the old paper licences.

Although card applications are being processed in very large numbers, not everyone who wants to fish or hunt in January will get their new card in time for the new year. Application forms for the card are available at licence issuers and ministry offices. The new licence stickers will also be available through licence issuers for those who have received their cards. Anglers and hunters who have applied for a card will be able to hunt and fish in January even though they have not yet received the card and appropriate licence. The grace period will apply for January only. After that, all residents must have a card to legally hunt or fish.

Conservation Officers will exercise discretion with hunters and anglers who are unable to produce their card and licence and say the card is in the mail. The officers will be able to check with a central database to confirm whether a person's application has been processed.

More than a million applications were mailed out in November. The size of the application processing task has caused a small backlog which will be reduced within the next few weeks.

Throughout 1993, temporary cards and fishing licences will be available from licence issuers. These are valid for 60 days — during which time the purchaser may send in the appropriate copy of the temporary card form to obtain his or her three-year plastic card. The temporary card for anglers will be available all year, not just for the grace period.

Three-year licences for fishing and hunting are available when an applicant initially applies for the card. Until this March the card fee is included in the price of the licence.

Hydro, stamps and rent all increasing in 1993

For many the new year is seen as a great time to start a new saving's plan, but for government agencies and utilities it provides the perfect opportunity to raise fees.

Heading up the price-hike list is Ontario Hydro who are raising their fees by eight per cent this year with similar fee increases expected for the next two years at least.

Rents will go up by nearly five per cent for many people this year.

The Ministry of Housing has set a ceiling rent increase of 4.9 per cent for 1993. Landlords can increase their basic rental prices by that much without having a hearing before the ministry.

Landlords can raise their rents above that level, but have to justify it to the ministry. Tenants do not have to pay the proposed increase until it is approved. Landlords must give 90 days written notice of rent increases above the ceiling level.

If you mail your rent money in it will cost you more to do so this year. The price of sending a letter to anywhere in Canada jumped one penny, from 42 cents to 43 cents.

Sending a letter to the United States will also cost you an extra penny as Canada Post has raised the price to 49 cents. As well, international letters will now cost 86 cents, an increase of two cents. And if you're worried about your mail getting there, sending a registered letter jumps a dime, from $2.85 to $2.95.

However, on the positive side you should notice an extra bit added to your pay check. The federal government has slightly lowered the amount of tax collected for most people.

But don't go spending the extra few cents you'll get because the provincial government will be taking most of it back with their tax increases.

As well, you might be spending it on road tolls if the province gets their way. The NDP wants to raise money by charging drivers to use their highways as they do in much of the United States.

Sinking like a hut

George Anderson was in for a shock last Wednesday when he discovered that his ice fishing hut had started to sink into the ice on Gull Lake. Anderson said that on Sunday there was a good thickness of ice, but the warmer temperatures and rain changed conditions quickly. Currently, there are less than six inches of black ice on many area lakes, which makes for unsafe conditions. The weather is expected to turn colder this week and ice fishermen will be out on the lakes again. Remember to have your license ready to show conservation officers who will be out checking to make sure you aren't fishing illegally.

County spends $2.5 million on area roads

Four major road reconstruction projects were undertaken by the county last year at a cost of $2.46-million, the roads committee reported at last Wednesday's County Council meeting.

County Roads 1, 2, 12 and 14 shared the focus of the work in 1992.

A five-kilometre strip of County Road 1 received extensive work at a cost of $310,000. The work included pulver-

Roads department should come in on budget says committee chairman Lewis Stevens izing, drainage, base and paving.

Continuation of the realignment of County Road 2 (Deep Bay Road) for two kilometres cost the county $630,000. The work here included rock and earth grading, base, surface and installation of a guiderail.

Work on a nine kilometre stretch of County Road 12 (Livingstone Lake Road) cost $920,000. This included clearing, grubbing, grading, drainage, base and surface.

County Road 14 (Haliburton Lake Road) had work done on a 1.5 kilometre stretch at a cost of $600,000. This included rock and earth grading, base surface and guiderail.

The report also says that most accumulated machinery credits have been used up to pay for the overexpenditures in construction.

However, these will accumulate rapidly enough for the county to keep up with the planned equipment replacement program.

Roads committee chairman Lewis Stevens reported that for every local dollar spent on county roads last year, another two came from the province.

Stevens said this injects over $3-million into the local economy. Approximately $1.16-million was spent on roads department payroll, which included 21 casual employees.

"The supervisory staff have had a very busy year in carrying out an ambitious construction program, as well as looking after necessary maintenance," Stevens read from the committee report.

"They feel capable of carrying out a similar program in 1993, should council decide to once more take advantage of the total subsidy offered by the MTO."

At this point in the year, Stevens said it appears the department will not overspend the total money available to them.

Novice C team unbeaten in three games

The Novice C Minden Monarchs travelled to Beaverton on December 19 and received an early Christmas present by blanking Beaverton 9-0.

Beaverton came out strong in the first period and had lots of opportunities to score, but could not put one by goaltender Jeremy Davis who earned his second shut-out on the season.

It wasn't until the second period that Minden broke the scoreless duel.

Scorers included three boys with hat tricks: Derek Barnett, Evan Kernohan and Kevin Walker. Walker and Barnett also received assists as did Matthew Young and Benji Saunders on the goals.

The Monarchs then won their first game of 1993 with a win over Little Britain.

Both teams were evenly matched with plenty of end-to-end action and the game was not decided until late in the third period.

Kevin Walker received a pass from Derek Barnett with both boys breaking for the net. Walker returned a perfect pass to Barnett who scored the winning goal with just 3:59 left in the game.

The following day, the Monarchs shut-out Ops 7-0.

Evan Kernohan led the way for the Monarchs with five goals while defenceman Kyle Danilko and Derek Barnett added the others.

Brent Heise, Matt Mattson and James Bleakley received assists on some of the goals.

The Monarchs showed that when they come up with a team effort they can win games.

The team was also sporting a new look with new sweaters and socks, courtesy of Lorne Heise.

A Haliburton Redmen forward tries the old wrap-around, but can't score on Weldon Wildcats goalie Phil Porter.

Seven is unlucky for Redmen

Up by two goals entering the third period it was gut check time for the Haliburton Highlands Redmen hockey team last Wednesday.

After losing their previous six games, the Redmen had opened up a gutsy 2-0 lead in front of just 80 fans, the smallest crowd of the year, against a strong I.E. Weldon Wildcats team.

All that was needed to end their losing streak was 15 good minutes of hockey.

The Redmen failed and lost 6-2 as the Wildcats offence stormed the Redmen net untamed and unchecked leaving goaltender Peter Brohman with little if any chance on all six goals.

The killer for the Redmen was two consecutive power play goals by the Wildcats early in the third period. With 1:01 gone in the period Chris Greenfield took an interference penalty. Just 40 seconds later, Mike Hennekan blasted a 35 foot bullet that deflected off the inside right post and past Brohman.

One minute later Derek Wilson received a checking from behind penalty. Soon after that Ryan Pogue, left uncovered at the side of the net, converted a rebound into the Wildcats second goal.

After that the Redmen seemed to be out of the game physically and they stopped hitting and pestering the Wildcats. Left alone, the small and quick forwards for the Wildcats were able to get a number of scoring chances, but only one player could convert. Unfortunately for the Redmen, Larry Houston was able to convert four straight times to give the Wildcats the win.

Both teams showed lackluster performances in the first period with Brohman and Wildcats goalie Phil Porter making some good stops to keep their teams tied.

However, the Redmen played one

Four teams race for second in men's hockey

The log jam for second place continues in Minden Men's Recreational League after hockey action last Monday night.

Just two points separate the middle four teams with Hartwick and Sid Stamp safely placed as the bookends in the six team division.

The Times jumped into a second place tie with KDD after pummeling Westside 10-1. Both teams have 11 points while Westside with nine points dropped into sole possession of fifth spot.

Tom Haley led the way for The Times with a four goal, five point performance including a natural hat trick in the first period. The Times potted five goals in each of the two periods as they kept pouring it on.

Westside did not score until late in the second period. Down 10-0, Doug Schell managed to put one in for Westside and spoil Terry Crowe's chance for a shut-out.

Along with Haley's outstanding performance, Dennis McKee and Eldon Bull also chipped in with four point nights. McKee scored two goals and two assists while Bull received three assists to go with his lone goal.

Other multiple point getters for The Times included Scott Gartshore, Doug Allison and Dave McKay all with three points while Dave Rogers and Jeff Hunter each had a pair of assists.

The Times has now won three in a row and four of their last five after a rocky start to the season. The loss for Westside was their second in a row after going unbeaten in their previous four.

In the night's first game, KDD was tied up by Home Hardware at one goal apiece to give The Times an opportunity to grab a share of second place.

Carey Gilligan gave KDD a short-lived lead in the first period after taking a pass from Joel Cox. Home Hardware answered that goal before the period was up when Jeff Howe assisted by Dave Crego scored.

No one could beat goalies Andrew Burk and Kevin Smith to break the tie in the second period.

KDD is now winless in their last three games while Home Hardware is on a modest two-game unbeaten streak.

League leading Hartwick took on cellar dwellers Sid Stamp and were hard-pressed to come up with a 4-3 win.

With the game tied at three late in the second period Hartwick's Ben Manuge scored the winning goal to send Sid Stamp to their eighth loss in ten games.

Hartwick had earlier taken leads of 1-0 and 3-2, but Sid Stamp tied it up on each occasion and even had the lead entering the second period.

Dave Pettes of Hartwick traded goals with Dave Dollo to start the game, but Brent Flood put Sid Stamp up 2-1 later in the first period.

However, Hartwick wiped out that lead by scoring two goals to start the second period. Andy Campbell and Paul Walker were the goals scorers for Hartwick. Scott Hamilton tied the game up again to set the stage for Manuge's winning goal.

Seven different players accounted for the seven goals. Greg Newell received two assists for Hartwick while Hamilton managed a goal and an assist in a losing cause for Sid Stamp.

Hartwick is now four points up in the race for first and with just five game left in the regular season should finish there with ease. Sid Stamp remains in last, five points behind Westside and need a hot streak to escape the basement.

(Standings on page 12)

Novice Bs take a bite out of the Cougars

The Ontario Hydro Novice B Monarchs started off the new year in impressive fashion with a 3-1 win over the Bobcaygeon Cougars.

The Cougars scored with under two minutes gone in the game to take the lead, but less than two minutes later the feisty Monarchs had tied it up with a goal by Nicholas Mitchell with assists by Jason Horsley and Graham Neave.

The game remained tied until late in the second period when Mitchell scored his second goal with a shot from just inside the blue line.

Both teams managed a lot of shots and showed aggressive checking, but strong defence play and good goaltending kept the Cougars off the scoreboard.

In one last desperate try for the tie, the Cougars pulled their goalie with less than a minute to go. However, after a face-off deep in the Monarchs' end the Monarchs got control of the puck and Andy Kinsman scored from near centre ice after Horsley and Mitchell had given him the puck.

To end the year the Monarchs converted the spirit of the holiday season into a couple of matches during the final days of the year with a 3-3 tie in Beaverton and a 6-3 loss against Haliburton.

Goaltender Philip Neville and six of his mates gave outstanding efforts for the shorthanded Monarchs in their 3-3 tie with Beaverton on December 18.

Nicholas Mitchell gave the Monarchs

a 1-0 lead with an unassisted marker to start the first period. However, Beaverton fought back to tie the game up before the end of the period.

The Monarchs took their second lead of the game just seconds into the second period when Mark Hamilton scored his first goal of the season with assist by Justin Walker. Hamilton is new to the team and to hockey.

Beaverton tied it up again before the Monarchs scored their third goal of the game. Andy Kinsman tipped in a shot from Mitchell and the Monarchs were ahead.

For the third straight time Beaverton managed to tie the game with a goal mid-way through the final frame and that ended the game's scoring.

In Haliburton on December 29 the Monarchs, once again short of players, put forth a great effort, but ended up losing 6-3.

The Huskies took a 1-0 lead in the first period, but Kinsman tied it up with an unassisted tally in the second. However, the Huskies potted two more goals during the second to go ahead to stay.

The Monarchs made it close in the third when Chris Boxall showed some strength in scoring his first goal of the year. Assisting on the play were Mitchell and Walker.

That would be as close as the Monarchs would get as the Huskies scored three times in the third. Kinsman, assisted by Mitchell and Hamilton, managed to get one back for the Monarchs.

Atoms win first game of new year with good effort

The Minden Monarchs Atom Bs have started the new year off with a great turn-around.

The team won its first of the new year with a 4-2 victory in Beaverton on January 2.

Beaverton had a one goal lead at the end of the first period. However, Ryan White put the Monarchs on an even keel with an assist from Mike Sheppard.

Less than two minutes later Trevor Cole found Rich Kinsman open on the wing and Kinsman put the Monarchs ahead when he scored on the ensuing breakaway.

During the third period, Adam Bathe scored after being set up perfectly by winger Justin Bull. Since two of the team's regular players, Jimmy Abbott and Matthew Hynard, were not able to make it to the game, Andy Kinsman was called up from the Novice Monarchs and he scored an unassisted goal.

Beaverton finally hit the score board again to finish the scoring.

Defencemen Ryan Lyddiatt, Gavin Simms, David Byrnes and Trevor Cole along with forwards Dennis Arbour and Greg Kerr have helped to bring the team along with their good play. However, goaltender Shane Walker has perhaps been the team's biggest asset. All the players have rewarded Ritchie Lyddiatt for his patience.

Bonspiel champs

Twelve teams took part in the Christmas break bonspiel at the Minden Curling Club, but it was Paul Gauntley's rink that captured the top prize. Curling with Gauntley were Glen Hall, John Ballantyne and Chris Carl. In second place in the bonspiel was Bob Colliver's rink. Howard Scott's team placed third while Ed Cyr's finished fourth.

Redmen hit new low, lose seventh in a row of their better periods of late as they scored twice in the second period to take the lead.

At 11:53 of the second period, Bill Bradley banged home a loose rebound as the Redmen forwards clogged up the front of the Wildcats net. Gordie Shaw and Derek Glendinning received assists on the play.

The second goal was on a similar play as Johnathon Bishop was left alone in front of the net to pop one over Porter's shoulder. Mark and Greg Stamp received assists and their line created a lot of problems for the Wildcats defence in the second period as they came alive with some spirited fore-checking.

However, that was all for the Redmen as even several sparkling stops by Brohman could not keep his team in the game.

The loss was the Redmen's second of the week as they also lost in Fenelon Falls on Tuesday. The Falcons pummeled the Redmen 9-1 in a match up of Kawartha East teams.

Assistant coach Paul Longo said the Falcons came up with a strong fore-checking effort to frustrate the Redmen who did not have one of their better games.

Chris Bradford scored the lone goal for the Redmen.

Earlier this year, the Redmen had beaten the Falcons 4-3 in the middle of their season opening five game winning streak. The two teams have one more match against each other.

Last weekend the Redmen took off to Peterborough for the Snofest Tournament. Look for results in next week's The Times.

Fortunately for the Redmen, they now have a chance to recuperate since their next league game isn't until Wednesday, January 27 when they meet Lindsay Collegiate at the Dysart Arena. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Pee Wee Bs lose twice

It was a tough week for Minden Monarchs Pee Wee B team as they lost both of their games.

Last Thursday night in Fenelon Falls, the Monarchs lost a very high-scoring match 9-5 to the Flyers.

George Godfrey scored in the first period and Jamie Henderson got another one for the Monarchs in the second.

Chris Kerr made it close for the Monarchs with a natural hat trick in the third period.

Earlier in the week, the Monarchs lost 8-1 to cross county rivals

Wilberforce.

Steven St. Cyr led the way for Wilberforce with five goals, one of them unassisted, all of them during the second and third periods. Wilberforce took a 1-0 lead in the first period when Steven Davidson scored an unassisted goal.

Jason Kasupchuk scored the lone goal for the Monarchs in the second period.

The Wilberforce onslaught continued in the third period as both Shane Parks and Luke Barker scored.

High school skiers get ready

Trees have been cut and boulders bulldozed and preparations made for the sudden arrival of over 1000 people to the Haliburton area.

No, a line of defence is not being hastily erected to repel some hostile invasion force. What is going on are preparations for the OFSAA Nordic Skiing Championships which are taking place on the Glebe Park course in Haliburton on February 22 and 23.

For two years now the course has been undergoing changes such as widening of the trails and removal of obstacles in order to bring it up to the standards required for it to be an official race course.

Last year three races were held on the course in order to see if it was suitable. Bruce Griffith, who coaches the Nordic ski team at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School says that he personally feels that it is the best race course in Ontario.

"It's got flats and both uphill and downhill stretches so that all different types of terrain are represented and the last kilometer is mostly downhill so this should make for fast, exiting finishes" says Griffith who also added that there is lots of room for spectators at the start and finish area.

Griffith said that the event should draw a lot of spectators and hopefully bring additional business to the area.

Skiers and coaches from both the provincial and national junior teams will be attending as well as representatives from Swix, Rosignol and other large ski equipment manufacturers.

Griffith also says that the community has reason to be proud because it is hosting the most important junior Nordic ski race in Canada.

HHSS has one hopeful, Ryan Cummings, who has a definite shot at the medals in the junior boys event.

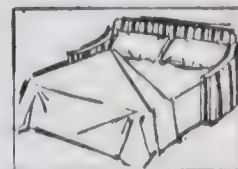

On Sunday, February 21, between 1:00 pm and 4:00 pm all athletes will have practice time on the Glebe Park course.

On Monday, February 22, the individual championships will be held and at 7:00 pm an awards ceremony will be held at HHSS for the winners.

Tuesday, February 23 will see the relay championships and at approximately 2:00 pm the winners will receive their awards at a ceremony held at Glebe Park.

The HHSS Nordic ski team is comprised of Cory Burk, Brad Crane, Chris Crane, Ryan Cummings, Jason Draper, Rudy Edwards, Mike Ellis, Yvette Foster, Tai Gerrard, Jamie McMahon, Joel Parker, Ron Reid, Simon Reid, Damon Smith, Shawn Swan, Max Weber, Jeanette Wheeler and Amanda Woods and is coached by Griffith and Sharon Dibblee.

Congratulations go out to three birthday ladies

To start this week we have three residents who celebrated their birthdays and we send our congratulations to them. They are Gertie McKay - Dec. 19; Annie Schultz - Dec. 20; and Louise Bishop - Dec. 21.

Sunday, Dec. 20 Chapel service was performed by Rev. John Burgess, with Louise Leonard at the organ. Thank you John and Louise.

Monday Evelyn Coleman came for the Bible Study in the Chapel and as usual brought us each some sweets for the holiday, as well as her account of Mary's life story, according to the Bible.

Tom McAllister came that evening to show the movies. They were A Good Tree, The Littlest Angel, and A Figgy Duff Christmas. They were a change and we enjoyed them. Thanks Tom.

Chapel service was conducted by Louise Leonard, who sincerely has all our thanks for being so faithful.

Linda conducted a bingo in the afternoon with prizes for a bingo that had to be answered by something Santa-ish, like Ho Ho. On Wednesday, Linda made a kettle of hot cider and we had more Christmas goodies made by the residents. We thank her. We

by Winnifred Barnum

also enjoyed the afternoon quiz about Christmas, especially in our childhood days.

Thursday we had a wonderful afternoon with Jock Mavor, Kathy Owens and Jock's wife, Betty. Jock read a small portion of the scriptures to us, Kathy played the piano and Jock sang, with us joining in when we could. Grace Coburn sang a couple of duets with him. We do sincerely thank Jock and Kathy. Refreshments were served at the close.

A very special thank you to the Hyland Crest Home Auxiliary - for if it had not been for them, Santa and his elf would not have appeared.

Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous new year in 1993 to everyone.

I was to my son Terry and Norma Barnum's for Christmas Day. Norma's mother Clara Austin, and my grandson Rick joined us to open presents around the Christmas tree. I left a dining room with beautifully set tables here at Hyland Crest, and a delicious dinner provided by the dietary department. Many thanks to everyone.

District's medical officer of health retires

Dr. Donald Mikel served the health unit for 16 years

The Board of Health has announced the retirement of Dr. Donald E. Mikel as Medical Officer of Health for the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit and has appointed Dr. Alexander Hukowich as his replacement.

Mikel has guided the three counties through many public health changes, challenges and crises, a news release from the board of health says. Over the past 16 years, his expertise, experience, wit and sense of humour have kept the health unit on the leading edge of public health across the province.

As of January 1, Hukowich has filled the position vacated by Mikel. He is moving to the Cobourg area from Timmins, where he has been the Medical Officer of Health for the past 14 years.

Hukowich graduated from the University of Toronto in 1970 with a medical degree. He received his certification from the College of Family Physicians of Canada in 1976 and the Diploma in Public Health in 1978. He practised family medicine in South Porcupine from 1971 to 1977 and has also served as coroner for the district since 1973.

Hukowich has also served on various hospital committees, boards and advisory groups. He is currently past president of the Association of Local Official Health Agencies.

Mikel's retirement closes a lengthy career in the health field filled with accomplishments. He has been with the health unit since 1976 when he was acting Medical Officer of Health. In 1978, after completion of the Diploma in Public Health, he officially took on the position.

Prior to this, Mikel was in private practice in Cobourg for 29 years.

Continually active in public health matters, Mikel spearheaded the health unit's accreditation application in 1982. This health unit was the first in Canada to be accredited, and, under Mikel's leadership and vision has since received the highest award three times.

He has been a very active member of the Association of Local Official Health Agencies, having been a driving force in its establishment. He served on the Executive for four years and received their Distinguished Service Award in 1987 and 1989.

Always on the lookout for innovative programs and services that the health unit could offer, Mikel hired non-traditional public health professionals, such as chiropodists and speech-language pathologists.

He also sought economical ways of providing services and thus initiated a small on-site printing press operation and an audio-visual department.

The start of the new year brings with it the anticipated move of the health unit's head office to Port Hope. The new office is slated for completion and occupation by the middle of February. A date for the official opening is yet to be announced. Staff are carefully planning for the move and anticipate only minimal disruption of services during this time.

The health unit works closely with the community to provide programs and services that are required by the Ministry of Health. These include promotion of healthy growth, environments and lifestyles, the control of communicable diseases, and delivery of Home Care Programs.

The number of staff required to implement these programs has increased over the past 10 years. In the head office alone, the number has grown from 40 in 1982 to 62 in 1992.

This growth has made the health unit's present office inadequate. Therefore, the head office will be moving to its new location at 200 Rose Glen Road in Port Hope.

Selling your car soon? new rules now apply

More than 75 per cent of the used cars and trucks sold in Ontario are purchased from private sellers. Consumers should be aware of some problems they can prevent before making a private purchase.

First, make sure there is no lien against the vehicle. This means the current owner has money owing on the vehicle in the form of a loan collateral or defaults in payment. If you purchase any vehicle with a lien against it you could lose it if the original creditors seize the vehicle.

To protect yourself against losing your car, check for liens with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations Personal Property Registration Branch before making the purchase. Be sure to provide the ministry with the correct vehicle information number of serial number. Consumers buying used cars from an Ontario registered dealer have better protection against lien problems than those who purchase from private sellers. By law, dealers must clear any liens against vehicles before sales are final. If they fail to do so they are the ones responsible for any outstanding debts.

To protect consumers from unscrupulous sellers, the provincial government will be bringing in new legislation which will require the private seller of a used vehicle to purchase a Vehicle Transfer Package. Effective April 1 of this year, the dealer will pass the Vehicle Transfer Package on to the buyer before transfer of the vehicle registration takes place. That package will contain information on any outstanding liens and a list of the cars ownership history.

As many of you already know,

Drainville Diary

A report from Queen's Park

With Dennis Drainville, MPP

since the fall of last year, it has been mandatory to pay provincial sales tax on the purchase of all used vehicles. That tax is based on the Canadian Red Book value of the vehicle. The Red Book is the basic guide that the automobile industry uses to assess the value of any given used car or truck.

As of December two important changes were made to that legislation. Now, buyers of cars with a Red Book value of less than $1,000 will pay tax only on the actual purchase price of the vehicle (which is often less than the Red Book value due to age, wear or damage). This will ease the financial burden on anyone buying an older, less expensive vehicle. The changes are also retroactive and anyone who has already paid the higher Red Book value tax on a vehicle costing less than $1,000 will receive a refund from the Ministry of Revenue.

The second change concerns damaged or worn vehicles with a Red Book value of $1,000 or more. An appraisal of the value of the vehicle can now be obtained before registration and the tax will be based on the higher of the actual purchased price or the appraised value. In these cases, the buyers will not have to pay the Red Book value tax. Buyers will continue to pay tax based on the Red Book value for vehicles over $1,000 that do not have excessive damage or wear.

If you have any questions about the Used Vehicle Tax please contact my constituency office (705-324-6654).

Corporations putting countries at risk

The planet's biosphere that makes life on earth possible is a global commons in which the air, water, and even soil (through living organisms) is shared by all life forms.

Susan George has written books on economics and the so-called Third World including "How the Other Half Dies" and "Fate Worse Than Debt". As I indicated last week, she believes that global economics, supported by such institutions as the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, has become a modern form of imperialism that enslaves and drains the poor.

She cites the fact that between 1982 and 1991, African countries somehow managed to scrape up almost $1 billion a month to pay off their debt yet ended up owing 64 percent more! That statistic echoed Brazil's lament that in the last three years of the '80s, $50 billion was exported merely to service the interest on debt.

How did we arrive at such a state? In George's analysis it has been promulgated by the transnational corporations who began pushing into the poor countries in the 1960s by offering a dazzling array of goodies under the rubric of "development".

Consequently, "every country in the world is being encouraged or, indeed, forced to integrate into the world economy instead of finding our major necessities of life at the local level or the regional or the national level. We're first going to the international economy and then coming down towards the local and the domestic."

This represents a complete reversal in the way societies have operated in the past when the focus of attention was the local community. All people "got their major necessities from the local, domestic arena, then the slightly larger regional, then national.

"And finally if necessary, they would go to the international level. You don't have enormous transport costs or ecological costs. You certainly don't have this integration of so many Third World countries on such inhuman and unremunerative terms that they have now."

George's thesis echoes that of World Bank senior economist, Herman Daley, who believes that the thrust towards the global economy is exactly opposite to what we should all be doing.

To Daley, transnationals undercut community values like social justice, equal opportunity, sustainability or happiness with their focus on short-term returns and maximizing profit.

As Daley says: "The community is the level at which people actually know each other and in which they are able to make decisions and feel the consequences of those decisions."

George believes we can begin to change this destructive bent by bringing "the major needs for not only our physical lives but our cultural lives much closer to home...Think locally in order to act globally...To save things everywhere, you've got to start by saving them somewhere."

I interpret that to mean that in the North and South, we apply a different principle that we, as consumers, buy local. In the short run, that injunction may cost more, but it will bring long-term benefits to community.

In spite of her devastating analysis of the crippling effect of debt on the South, George sees rays of hope there "because people are reacting. People are not taking this structural adjustment lying down...They are forming their own groups to combat this.

"NGO (non-governmental organization) activity

Reflections

by David Suzuki

has never been so strong in the Third World. There are 1,600 different environmental groups in Brazil who came to the Rio conference...the creativity of these groups in the South absolutely puts us to shame.

"They have a lot of inventiveness."

George recommends that we in the rich countries support this creativity and the local priorities of Third World NGOs.

The fate of the poorest countries of the world has a direct effect on us through what George calls the "Debt Boomerang". We are feeling the effect of the South's debt because "They're selling off their forests and that means that we are losing a climate stabilizer.

"When the trees go that means that global warming is going to increase. It means that biodiversity is going to go." And globalization of the economy has meant "In the United States, the job loss, directly due to the debt crisis, has been in the order of two million jobs at a very conservative estimate and in Europe it has been at least three quarters of a million jobs."

Constant repetition of the mantra of growth, competitiveness and globalization, keeps us from dealing with the underlying issues that Daley and George describe.

Ministry of Housing allows rent increase of 4.9 per cent for 1993

The Ministry of Housing statutory rent increase for 1993 has been set at 4.9 per cent.

That figure is the amount by which a landlord can increase the maximum rent for a unit during the year without approval from the housing ministry.

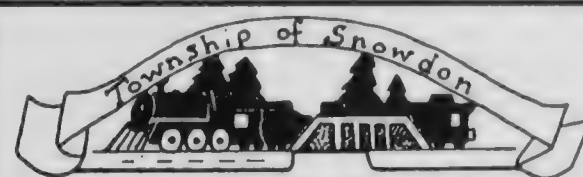

A tenant does not have to accept an increase and may challenge the change by applying to the nearest Rent Control Office.

A 90 day written notice must be given on the prescribed form and can only be raised once in each 12-month period, even when a new tenant moves in.

If you require further information or wish to challenge an increase contact Rent Control (toll-free) by asking the operator for Zenith 96000. For anyone seeking accommodation, the Haliburton County Information Centre maintains a current list of available housing in the area.

In Haliburton, the office is located in the Drag River Municipal Building on Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., call 457-2733. In Minden the centre is located in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal Building on Milne St., open Monday and Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., call 286-4100.

Wasn't it wonderful that our Junior National Hockey team won the World Gold medal! We hoped they'd take it and they did!

January Blues

Well Christmas is over for one more year

And some of us seem to have lost our good cheer

We sit around feeling quite low,

We have a bad cold or a pain in the toe.

The weather is rotten and our friends don't come near,

Not a good mood in which to start a new year.

I know it is hard for we seniors to cope,

We have to somehow keep up our hope

We need to read our bible every passing day

And of course, we must not forget to pray.

We must keep up our faith in our Father above

And not forget to give others our love.

Florence Robinson.

The Minden Fire Fighters Association would like to thank the following businesses for donating prizes at the New Year's Eve dance which helped to make this event one of the best ever: Minden IDA Drug Store; D & S Discounts; Suzie Q's; Highland's Jewellery and China Shoppe; Rockcliffe Snack Bar; Westside Jug City; Minden Home Hardware; Highlands Plumbing and Heating; Jack Baker Ltd; Highland Guardian Drug Store. 1B

A very belated thank you to all the ladies of the Minden U.C.W. who supplied the sandwiches, cookies and squares and those who helped to serve the delicious lunch for my mother's 90th birthday party on November 14th. It was very much appreciated. Also, thanks to relatives, friends and neighbours for their best wishes, gifts and attendance at the Open House. Mother was certainly surprised and thoroughly enjoyed her day. Thank you all.
Pat Bradburn

CARDS OF THANKS

Words cannot express my thanks to all the wonderful people, who helped my family and myself before Jim's death and afterward. Special thanks go to Donna Quance, the Minister of Minden United Church who spent many hours with me and whose words of comfort at the service were so helpful to me and my family. Thanks to the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636 for their special service, the Minden United Church Women who served a tasty lunch after the service, Ann McAdam who played Jim's favourite hymns, our relatives, friends and neighbours who sent flowers, signed donation cards and sent food to the house. All the staff at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home were most helpful and comforting. I would like to thank Dr. Chayer for the careful and thoughtful way he looked after Jim during the last year and a half. Last but not least my special thanks to my son-in-law, Mark Niblett for his words of "Remembrance" at the funeral service.
Doris Grant

Many thanks to my daughter Elaine Jackson, the U.C.W. of Zion United Church, Carnarvon, my relatives, friends and acquaintances, who made the celebration of my 80th birthday on December 13th, 1992 at Zion United Church Hall, Carnarvon, a momentous occasion. It is deeply appreciated.
Rev. John B. Spenceley

IN MEMORIAM

SAWYER - In loving memory of my dad - Elmer Sawyer. When I am walking in the bush, The movement of a branch, Or a leaf will fall, I feel your warmth surround me, And far away I hear your call. When I look out on the lake, A ripple, a wave, or a loon I will see, I feel your warmth, My hand you take, And you are saying it is but me. When I look into the darkness of night, And the stars are shining bright, I feel your warmth around me, And I see a ray of light. I knew you would not go and stay, That you would return with Nature one day, You surround us with Your warmth and love, And the gates are open To your garden above. We miss and love you always, Nelson and Betty.

MASON: In loving memory of Tressa Mason who passed away January 11, 1992. As time unfolds another year, Memories keep you ever near. Silent thoughts of times together, Hold memories that will last forever. Memories are like threads of gold, They never tarnish or grow old, As you were, you'll always be, Cherished forever in our memory. Lovingly remembered by her son John and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

COOPER - Sadly missed Jenny Cooper - beloved wife, dear mother and grandmother who passed away in her 59th year on December 30th, 1991. In a quiet country cemetery, Where gentle breezes blow, Lies one we love and miss. Memories live forever, As beautiful they are, Never replaced by anyone. We may think the wound has healed, But our hearts will always bleed, Our love for you deepens, Every passing day, Till we're together again. Forever loved by Maurice, Ivan, Sheila, Angela, Darryl and family.
